At DeWitt's End

The following is an excerpt from the Introduction of The 10 Greatest Struggles of Your Life by Colin S. Smith. Our church will be taking a close look at some of the lessons from this book in the weeks to come.

“God is love, and He calls us to pursue a life that reflects His character. That’s why He gave us the Ten Commandments. They show us what God is like and spell out the meaning of love. The reason we should not commit adultery is that God is faithful. The reason for not bearing false witness is that God speaks the truth. The reason for not coveting is that God is content in Himself. This is what God is like and since you were created in His image, this is the life for which you were made.

“But this life does not come naturally. The impulses of greed, anger, and self-interest run so deep within us that anyone who seriously tries to live the life described here will soon be convinced that we desperately need help.

“To many people, the Ten Commandments are mere relics of history, tablets of stone – valuable perhaps for maintaining law and order in society, but of little use of relevance in everyday life. But the commandments are indeed relevant, and this book will show you how each of God’s commands speaks directly to the ten greatest struggles of your life.

“God wants to meet with you in these struggles, to teach you the meaning of love and to lead you into healthy, thriving relationships, first with Himself and then with other people in your life.”

I look forward to exploring these lessons with you in the weeks to come!

Coming Sermons

- Sept. 18 “Temptation Can Be Bitter Sweet” Prov. 5:3-23
It may look different for each of us, but we all face temptation on a daily basis. Although the allure of temptation can look pretty sweet at times, the Bible tells us that some temptations can be bitter as poison if we take a bite.
- Sept. 25 “Give Me Peace” Prov. 17:1
Solomon had all of the privileges money could buy when he grew up as the child of a King. He did not, unfortunately, have all the privileges of peace in the palace. Given the choice between prosperity and peace, his decision was a simple one: give me peace! Peace can be difficult to find at times. How can we find peace in our lives?

Sermon Series on 10 Commandments:

Some of the small groups in the church are studying the book, The 10 Greatest Struggles of Your Life, by Colin S. Smith. Pastor Dan will coordinate his sermons beginning in October to address the topics covered by these groups each week. The 10 topics of this book are based on the 10 Commandments. He will attempt to address the topics on the Sunday prior to the week the small groups will address each chapter.

- Oct. 2 “Invited Into A Relationship With God” Exodus 20:3
God invites us each into a relationship with Him. This relationship begins by accepting and recognizing His love for us and then responding with love and loyalty in return. This response means putting God in a position of more importance in our lives than anything else. (10 Struggles, ch. 1)

At DeWitt's End

The following is an excerpt from the Introduction of The 10 Greatest Struggles of Your Life by Colin S. Smith. Our church will be taking a close look at some of the lessons from this book in the weeks to come.

“God is love, and He calls us to pursue a life that reflects His character. That’s why He gave us the Ten Commandments. They show us what God is like and spell out the meaning of love. The reason we should not commit adultery is that God is faithful. The reason for not bearing false witness is that God speaks the truth. The reason for not coveting is that God is content in Himself. This is what God is like and since you were created in His image, this is the life for which you were made.

“But this life does not come naturally. The impulses of greed, anger, and self-interest run so deep within us that anyone who seriously tries to live the life described here will soon be convinced that we desperately need help.

“To many people, the Ten Commandments are mere relics of history, tablets of stone – valuable perhaps for maintaining law and order in society, but of little use of relevance in everyday life. But the commandments are indeed relevant, and this book will show you how each of God’s commands speaks directly to the ten greatest struggles of your life.

“God wants to meet with you in these struggles, to teach you the meaning of love and to lead you into healthy, thriving relationships, first with Himself and then with other people in your life.”

I look forward to exploring these lessons with you in the weeks to come!

Coming Sermons

- Sept. 18 “Temptation Can Be Bitter Sweet” Prov. 5:3-23
It may look different for each of us, but we all face temptation on a daily basis. Although the allure of temptation can look pretty sweet at times, the Bible tells us that some temptations can be bitter as poison if we take a bite.
- Sept. 25 “Give Me Peace” Prov. 17:1
Solomon had all of the privileges money could buy when he grew up as the child of a King. He did not, unfortunately, have all the privileges of peace in the palace. Given the choice between prosperity and peace, his decision was a simple one: give me peace! Peace can be difficult to find at times. How can we find peace in our lives?

Some of the small groups in the church are studying the book, The 10 Greatest Struggles of Your Life, by Colin S. Smith. Pastor Dan will coordinate his sermons beginning in October to address the topics covered by these groups each week. The 10 topics of this book are based on the 10 Commandments. He will attempt to address the topics on the Sunday prior to the week the small groups will address each chapter.

- Oct. 2 “Invited Into A Relationship With God” Exodus 20:3
God invites us each into a relationship with Him. This relationship begins by accepting and recognizing His love for us and then responding with love and loyalty in return. This response means putting God in a position of more importance in our lives than anything else. (10 Struggles, ch. 1)

At DeWitt's End

The following is an excerpt from the Introduction of The 10 Greatest Struggles of Your Life by Colin S. Smith. Our church will be taking a close look at some of the lessons from this book in the weeks to come.

“God is love, and He calls us to pursue a life that reflects His character. That’s why He gave us the Ten Commandments. They show us what God is like and spell out the meaning of love. The reason we should not commit adultery is that God is faithful. The reason for not bearing false witness is that God speaks the truth. The reason for not coveting is that God is content in Himself. This is what God is like and since you were created in His image, this is the life for which you were made.

“But this life does not come naturally. The impulses of greed, anger, and self-interest run so deep within us that anyone who seriously tries to live the life described here will soon be convinced that we desperately need help.

“To many people, the Ten Commandments are mere relics of history, tablets of stone – valuable perhaps for maintaining law and order in society, but of little use of relevance in everyday life. But the commandments are indeed relevant, and this book will show you how each of God’s commands speaks directly to the ten greatest struggles of your life.

“God wants to meet with you in these struggles, to teach you the meaning of love and to lead you into healthy, thriving relationships, first with Himself and then with other people in your life.”

I look forward to exploring these lessons with you in the weeks to come!

Coming Sermons

- Sept. 18 “Temptation Can Be Bitter Sweet” Prov. 5:3-23
It may look different for each of us, but we all face temptation on a daily basis. Although the allure of temptation can look pretty sweet at times, the Bible tells us that some temptations can be bitter as poison if we take a bite.
- Sept. 25 “Give Me Peace” Prov. 17:1
Solomon had all of the privileges money could buy when he grew up as the child of a King. He did not, unfortunately, have all the privileges of peace in the palace. Given the choice between prosperity and peace, his decision was a simple one: give me peace! Peace can be difficult to find at times. How can we find peace in our lives?

The reason we should not commit adultery is that God is faithful. The reason for not bearing false witness is that God speaks the truth. The reason for not coveting is that God is content in Himself. This is what God is like and since you were created in His image, this is the life for which you were made.

“But this life does not come naturally. The impulses of greed, anger, and self-interest run so deep within us that anyone who seriously tries to live the life described here will soon be convinced that we desperately need help.

“To many people, the Ten Commandments are mere relics of history, tablets of stone – valuable perhaps for maintaining law and order in society, but of little use of relevance in everyday life. But the commandments are indeed relevant, and this book will show you how each of God’s commands speaks directly to the ten greatest struggles of your life.

“God wants to meet with you in these struggles, to teach you the meaning of love and to lead you into healthy, thriving relationships, first with Himself and then with other people in your life.”

I look forward to exploring these lessons with you in the weeks to come!

At DeWitt's End

The following is an excerpt from the Introduction of The 10 Greatest Struggles of Your Life by Colin S. Smith. Our church will be taking a close look at some of the lessons from this book in the weeks to come.

“God is love, and He calls us to pursue a life that reflects His character. That’s why He gave us the Ten Commandments. They show us what God is like and spell out the meaning of love. The reason we should not commit adultery is that God is faithful. The reason for not bearing false witness is that God speaks the truth. The reason for not coveting is that God is content in Himself. This is what God is like and since you were created in His image, this is the life for which you were made.

“But this life does not come naturally. The impulses of greed, anger, and self-interest run so deep within us that anyone who seriously tries to live the life described here will soon be convinced that we desperately need help.

“To many people, the Ten Commandments are mere relics of history, tablets of stone – valuable perhaps for maintaining law and order in society, but of little use of relevance in everyday life. But the commandments are indeed relevant, and this book will show you how each of God’s commands speaks directly to the ten greatest struggles of your life.

“God wants to meet with you in these struggles, to teach you the meaning of love and to lead you into healthy, thriving relationships, first with Himself and then with other people in your life.”

I look forward to exploring these lessons with you in the weeks to come!

--Dan D.

Coming Sermons

- Sept. 18 “Temptation Can Be Bitter Sweet” Prov. 5:3-23
It may look different for each of us, but we all face temptation on a daily basis. Although the allure of temptation can look pretty sweet at times, the Bible tells us that some temptations can be bitter as poison if we take a bite.
- Sept. 25 “Give Me Peace” Prov. 17:1
Solomon had all of the privileges money could buy when he grew up as the child of a King. He did not, unfortunately, have all the privileges of peace in the palace. Given the choice between prosperity and peace, his decision was a simple one: give me peace! Peace can be difficult to find at times. How can we find peace in our lives?

Sermon Series on 10 Commandments:

Some of the small groups in the church are studying the book, The 10 Greatest Struggles of Your Life, by Colin S. Smith. Pastor Dan will coordinate his sermons beginning in October to address the topics covered by these groups each week. The 10 topics of this book are based on the 10 Commandments. He will attempt to address the topics on the Sunday prior to the week the small groups will address each chapter.

- Oct. 2 “Invited Into A Relationship With God” Exodus 20:3
God invites us each into a relationship with Him. This relationship begins by accepting and recognizing His love for us and then responding with love and loyalty in return. This response means putting God in a position of more importance in our lives than anything else. (10 Struggles, ch. 1)
